Farell Folly: hello all

----- (10/02/2017 20:04) -----

Ines Hfaiedh: Hi everyone

Ines Hfaiedh: thank you for joigning

Ines Hfaiedh: we will start momentarily

Remmy Nweke: Hi all

----- (10/02/2017 20:06) -----

Ines Hfaiedh: yes

hanan hatib: yes

----- (10/02/2017 20:09) -----

Arsene Tungali: good to have everyone here! hello from Congo

Remmy Nweke: Hi Ines

hanan khatib: hi

housseem kaabi: hi everyone

housseem kaabi: hi Ines :D

Onica: hi all

youssef abdelrahim: Hi All,

Maryam Bakoshi: All, my apologies for the delay at the start of the call

----- (10/02/2017 20:12) -----

Arsene Tungali: i cannot see the slides

----- (10/02/2017 20:13) ----- youssef abdelrahim: Me also, don't see slides, thank Maryam Bakoshi: Can you see it now?

Ayden Férdeline: I can see the slides. Strange that others can't Maryam Bakoshi: If not, please close your browsr and restart that might help

youssef abdelrahim: not yet

Muriel: Hi all, just coming

youssef abdelrahim: ok

Maryam Bakoshi: All, please kindly mute your mic if you are not speaking. Thanks!

----- (10/02/2017 20:18) ----- housseem kaabi: nice presentation Ines hanan khatib: Maryam i could not mute that is why i just stepped out bt i can hear you

Ines Hfaiedh: we can hear you arsene

Remmy Nweke: Arsene pls go on

Maryam Bakoshi: Thanks Hanan

housem kaabi: you raise the question of access which present a giant obstacle to developpement in Africa, what can NCUC do in order to improve it?

----- (10/02/2017 20:24) -----

Kris Seeburn: its a battle ground right now

Remmy Nweke: i also think that accessibility and affordability is largely outcome of economic power per capita

----- (10/02/2017 20:26) -----

Kris Seeburn: i would say the governments and isps are the key to access and the costs as ines suggested

housem kaabi: thanks arsène

Onica Makwakwa: Unfortunately my audio seems to be on and off hope it stabilizes soon, anyone else with similar challenge?

Muriel: Yes Onica, i have the same issue

Kris Seeburn: the governments in africa in general have no idea of multi stakeholder model or even understand bottom up process

----- (10/02/2017 20:30) -----

Muriel: Kris Seeburn, that's right. Our government don't understand a lot of terms and process about internet governance

Kris Seeburn: i've seen that over six years as being part of the Afrinic board....

housem kaabi: I think also that in order to enhance ICT in Africa it's through Edcuation and raising awerness about this issue. This why it's very improtant to target a new alternative digital education in order to raise a generation that advocate for IG issues. I think that NCUC have a key role in this process

----- (10/02/2017 20:33) -----

Wisdom Donkor: hello

Maryam Bakoshi: We cant hear you Wisdom

Wisdom Donkor: yes

Wisdom Donkor: can you hear me

Maryam Bakoshi: No we canr

Maryam Bakoshi: *cant

Onica Makwakwa: no we can't hear you

Benjamin Akinmoyeje (Nigeria): wisdom connect your mic or audio to the meeting

Wisdom Donkor: +233208128851

Benjamin Akinmoyeje (Nigeria): it is not automatic, you have to connect your audio first mr wisdom donkor

Maryam Bakoshi: Thanks Wisdom, will do

Muriel: connection failed

Farell Folly: It keeps failing....

Wisdom Donkor: i will like to dial in
----- (10/02/2017 20:38) -----

Maryam Bakoshi: I have requested this for you

Maryam Bakoshi: If you are speaking please kindly mute your mic
----- (10/02/2017 20:39) -----

Ines Hfaiedh: 23 per cent internet use gender gap wow
----- (10/02/2017 20:42) -----

Ines Hfaiedh: only 5 out of 27 countries have affordable internet
----- (10/02/2017 20:47) -----

Yolanda Mlonzi: hi everyone

Ines Hfaiedh: Hi Yolanda

Ines Hfaiedh: welcome
----- (10/02/2017 20:54) -----

Ayden Férdeline: i have to get going now, thanks all!

Kris Seeburn: tc
----- (10/02/2017 20:57) -----

Ines Hfaiedh: wisdom raised an important point of building partnerships with the private sector to improve access

Kris Seeburn: someone talked before from DRC...does he know that there is a fibre itting under the river for years....!!!
----- (10/02/2017 21:04) -----

Yolanda Mlonzi: youth!

Yolanda Mlonzi: I like all your recommendations

Maryam Bakoshi: Wisdom Donkor: With all the issues of Access there are still issues the need urgent attention 1. Content 2. Gender 3. Education and capacity building

housem kaabi: this is quite effective recommendations

----- (10/02/2017 21:07) -----

Ines Hfaiedh: thank you very much Yolanda and Houssein

----- (10/02/2017 21:08) -----

Onica Makwakwa: Agree with you Maryam, those indeed are the demand side issues and with regards to content, in the context of Africa, this has to be relevant content including local language. We have to tackle these simultaneously because they're interdependent.

housem kaabi: maybe we should add the conversion of the role of teacher to a facilitator more than instructor & endorse the role of civil society to make lobbying in order to put pressure on Gov to make investment in education

----- (10/02/2017 21:10) -----

Yolanda Mlonzi: i missed the session on access, but i hope it was emphasized that connecting the next billion presents challenges beyond just education and mere access. the unconnected are beset by poverty and real socio-economic issues . access to the internet and ICTs should be a benefit . because what is internet access to someone who is living below the poverty line?

----- (10/02/2017 21:12) -----

Yolanda Mlonzi: next time, a little earlier :)

housem kaabi: thanks Ines, Maryam, Arsène, and wisdom

Onica Makwakwa: thank you!

Ines Hfaiedh: thanks everyone good night

Yolanda Mlonzi: thank you all

Adam Ahmat Doungous: thanks all

Adam Ahmat Doungous: bye

Maryam Bakoshi: Thank you all!

youssof abdelrahim: thank you
